To our valued customers,

For 40 years, our family-owned and operated organization has lived with a core value established by our founders, to take care of our employees and customers like family. This enduring value guides us as we face the difficult challenge of responding to the coronavirus (COVID-19). That said, the health and safety of our internal and external “family” members is, and will always be, paramount.

Like all of you, we’re working hard to make sure our employees are safe and well, and able to serve you. We’re enforcing safe health practices in our offices and production facilities, and we’ve put in place company-wide personnel and technology plans so we can continue to serve you as efficiently as in past years. Rest assured that all Kinter facilities are up and running and our two (2) distribution centers have deep inventories to support your businesses.

Your Kinter team is a simple phone call or email away to assist you. We are confident that the preparatory steps taken over the past several weeks is working, and we do not foresee any challenges relative to our production, operations, or inventories.

Thank you for your continued business.

Best regards,

Paul White
